Improving School Leadership EXECUTIVE SUMMARIES Improving School Leadership, Volume 1: Policy Practice As countries strive to reform education systems improve student results, school leadership is high education policy agendas. But in many countries, the and women who run schools are overburdened, underpaid and near retirement. And there are few people lining their jobs. What leadership roles are most effective in improving student learning? How to allocate and distribute different leadership tasks? How to ensure current and future leaders develop the right skills for effective leadership? These are questions facing governments around the world. This report is based on an OECD study of school leadership policies and practices around the world. Offering a valuable cross-country perspective, it identifies four policy and a range of policy options to help governments improve school leadership now and build sustainable leadership the future. Authors: Beatriz Pont, Deborah Nusche, Hunter Moorman

How the vocabulary trainer works

A term in the source language is presented, you type in the target word. If your input gets recognized as correct, the next word appears automatically. You can also use the "Yes" and "No" buttons to move around.

Correctly answered terms will be moved to the next section of the box, incorrect ones go back to the first section. Once a term made it to the last section, it should be stored in your long-term memory.

Listener Anticipates Speaker's Word Choice

ASCOLTARSI LA SCIENZA: UN MINUTO, CON TANTO DI TESTO

[The following is an exact transcript of this podcast.]

While I'm talking, you're not just passively listening. Your brain is also busy at work, guessing the next word that I will sa...vor before I actually speak it. You thought I was gonna say "say", didn't you. Our brains actually consider many possible words—and their meanings—before we've heard the final sound of the word in quest...of being understood.

Language comes flying at you at up to five syllables per second. So it was thought that listeners keep pace by anticipating a small subset of all words that the listener is familiar with. Think of how a Google search anticipates words based on the first few letters you type in. But now scientists have used functional magnetic resonance imaging to actually watch the brain consider different words. They report in the Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences that you narrow the choices by considering words that begin with the same sound. So if I say, "I tasted the sweetest can...your brain might already be priming itself to hear candy. Or maybe cantaloupe. But not candle. Who needs the Game Show Network? You're always playing Match Game in your head.

15 Settembre 2008

È stata rilasciata in giornata la versione beta di Office Live Workspace in italiano.

Disponibile a questo indirizzo, Office Live Workspace rappresenta una estensione online di Microsoft Office, che consente la creazione di aree di lavoro individuali, nelle quali archiviare e condividere i propri documenti.

Utilizzando Office Live Workspace è possibile riunire in un unico spazio pari a 500 Mb le informazioni relative a progetti in corso, invitando poi altri utenti nella propria area di lavoro.

Ciascun documento, indipendentemente dalla tipologia, può avere dimensioni fino a un massimo di 25 Mb e può essere aperto direttamente da Office, per poi essere salvato nuovamente sul Web con un solo clic.
